If your page has gone quiet, it is rarely a lack of talent. It is a lack of a repeatable post.

The move: Meet existing desire.

Do not try to create desire from nothing. Connect the offer to what the buyer already wants.

What that looks like on a Nigerian page:

Before: 'Buy our content engine.'
After: 'Stop staring at a blank calendar when you already have customer questions to answer.'

The part most people skip: do not steal the words. Steal the structure, then write your own example from your own customer.

Source: Breakthrough Advertising. Attributed, not quoted at length.

The five pages are attached as a document. Page one is the cover LinkedIn shows on mobile.

I am building Easywurld in public, and today's decision was meet Easywurld:
Sample label explainer.

Our portfolio is concept/sample work.
We label it because thinking is not a client result.
Here is what a sample can show: structure, tone and process.
Here is what it cannot show: live performance.

What I have learned building it: the work is rarely the hard part. The hard part is making the message, the website, the content and the follow-up say the same thing.

When they disagree, the customer does not argue. They just go quiet.

So I am posting the process here, including the parts that are still unfinished.
No wahala — that is the point of building in public.

What is the one thing in your business that keeps disagreeing with itself?

More followers means more sales. We put it on trial.

Verdict: It depends.

Followers can help reach, but sales need a relevant offer, trust and a clear route to buy. A smaller audience with the right problem can be more useful.

How we would test it:
Compare profile visits, offer clicks and confirmed sales per 1,000 views

Keep the useful part. Drop the absolute.

That is the whole method: one claim, one verdict, one test small enough to run this week.

Small-business life, photographed honestly.

Everyone wants viral. Nobody wants to answer the DMs.
Attention is the start of the work.

Two things worth changing this week:
1. Write the next step into the offer, not only the caption.

No thread. No funnel. Just the next step made obvious.

A question I asked five business owners this week.

One offer needs one clear page.

This is why The One-Offer Landing Page Kit exists as a ■5,000 DIY pack: most owners do not need an agency this month. They need the scripts, the tracker and the routine, and they need it before Friday.

I am deliberate about the boundary. It is not custom work. It does not guarantee sales. It helps you convert more of the enquiries you already get.

Saying the limit out loud has cost me nothing and saved a lot of awkward conversations.

What does your price reply say after the number?
