THE LOOP

What actually brings Easywurld customers

You asked for this to be separated out and made concrete, so here it is without the padding: the mechanisms that produce paying customers, ranked by how much each one actually returns per hour you put in.

> The short answer. Content does not bring customers. Content makes the customer believe you when you arrive. Outbound brings the customer. The pack converts them. The loop keeps them.

WHERE THE CUSTOMERS ACTUALLY COME FROM

01

The six channels, ranked by return

#	Channel	What it costs you	Realistic month-1 return	Verdict
1	Free site reviews (voice notes)	45 min/day	12–20 replies 1–2 projects	The engine
2	Replies to comments + DMs	20 min/day	8–12 pack sales	The converter
3	Posting (carousels, memes, video)	90 min/day	Reach + trust, few direct sales	The proof
4	Referrals from pack buyers	5 min/buyer	1–3 warm leads/month	Compounding
5	WhatsApp status + broadcast	10 min/day	Steady trickle, high trust	Underrated
6	Paid ads	₦50k+/month	Negative without a proven page	Not yet

> Why ads are last. Ads multiply whatever your page already does. If the page converts 1%, ads buy you traffic that mostly leaves. Fix the page and the offer first — then ads make sense, around month 3.

FORTY A MONTH, AND WHY IT BEATS FORTY POSTS

02

The engine: the free site review

A 60–90 second voice note with three specific fixes for a business's site or Instagram page, sent with no pitch. It works because it is the only message in their inbox that gives something away without asking.

The maths

Stage	Rate	Per 40 reviews
Delivered	—	40

Stage	Rate	Per 40 reviews
Reply	25–35%	10–14
Becomes a conversation	70% of replies	7–10
Audit call booked	50% of conversations	4–5
Proposal sent	80% of calls	3–4
Closed	30–50%	1–2 projects

The 90-second structure

01 0–10s — who you are, once. “Hi [Name], it’s [you] from Easywurld, I build websites for small businesses in Lagos.”

02 10–25s — the first fix. The most expensive problem, stated concretely. “Your homepage opens with a slogan, so a first-time visitor cannot tell what you sell.”

03 25–55s — the second and third fix. Smaller, specific, actionable today.

04 55–75s — what you would change first. One sentence. This is the value, not the pitch.

05 75–90s — the exit. “No need to reply if it’s not useful. If it is, I’m happy to talk.” Then stop.

What makes it fail

— A pitch in the note. One mention of price kills the whole mechanism.

— Vague fixes. “Improve your SEO” is not a fix. “Your page title says ‘Home’ — change it to what you sell” is.

— More than 90 seconds. Long voice notes are not listened to. This is the whole reason it works.

— Not doing them. Forty a month is the floor. Ten a week, every week, no exceptions.

> The uncomfortable maths: one hour of reviews beats a full day of posting, every single week, until you have roughly 10,000 followers. That is not a reason to stop posting — it is a reason to never let posting replace selling.

HOW ONE PURCHASE BECOMES THE NEXT FIVE

03

The loop

CONTENT → FIRST PURCHASE → DELIVERY → PROOF → UPGRADE → REFERRAL → CONTENT

Stage	What you do	What it must produce	When
Attract	Post the batch: carousels, memes, videos	A profile visit or a DM	Daily
First purchase	Keyword in DM → saved reply → payment link	Cash + a buyer who trusted you	Same day
Delivery	Send the pack, then ask one question about their business	A reply with a real detail	Within 1 hour
Proof	"Did it work — what changed?" Ask for a screenshot	A testimonial or case study	Day 7
Upgrade	Name the one thing the pack cannot do. Offer the call	An audit call booked	Day 10–14
Referral	"Who else has this problem?"	One warm name	Day 30
Content	The testimonial and before/after become next month's posts	Better proof

The three messages that turn the loop

> Day 7 — the proof ask. "Quick one — did the scripts help? I'm collecting before-and-afters for the page. Happy to credit you or keep it anonymous."

> Day 14 — the upgrade ask. "The pack gives you the scripts. What it can't do is answer the messages for you. If you ever want that built, that's a project — want me to send what it costs?"

> Day 30 — the referral ask. "Who's one other business owner you know with the same problem? No pressure — I'll send them the same free review I sent you."

Why the loop beats more content

A new follower costs impressions and luck. A repeat buyer costs one message and thirty seconds. The loop is the only part of this business that gets cheaper every month — which is why it outranks posting in the table in section 01.

ONE SHEET, SIX COLUMNS, FIVE MINUTES A DAY

04

The tracker

Keep it in Google Sheets, on your phone. If tracking takes longer than five minutes, you will stop, and then you will be guessing.

Column	What goes in it	Why
Date	Today	So you can see gaps
Source	Review / DM / comment / referral / status	Tells you which channel actually paid
Name + handle	The person	So you can follow up like a human
Stage	New · Quoted · Paid · Delivered · Upgraded	So nothing goes cold silently
Offer	Which pack or project	Shows which of the nine carries its weight
Next action + date	Follow up Tuesday / send proposal	The only column that makes money

The five-minute daily routine

01 Open the sheet. Clear anything with today’s follow-up date.

02 Log every new DM that came from content.

03 Move anyone who paid to ‘Paid’ and set the day-7 proof date.

04 Move anyone who replied to a review to ‘New’ with a next action.

05 Close the sheet. Do not tidy it.

> The one number to watch: replies per review, and DMs per post. Those two predict revenue a month before revenue does.

WITH THE LOOP BUILT IN, NOT BOLTED ON

05

The first fourteen days

Day	Post	Sell	The one thing
1	C1 carousel	10 review list built	WhatsApp Business live, payment link working
2	M1 meme	2 reviews sent	Reply to every comment within the hour
3	C2 carousel	2 reviews sent	First DM conversation from content
4	M2 meme	2 reviews sent	No offer today — let the opinion do the work
5	V1 video	2 reviews sent	Rotate the video to TikTok first, then IG, then FB
6	M3 meme	2 reviews sent	Check: which post got saved? Repeat that shape.
7	C3 carousel	Week scorecard	First proof ask to anyone who bought
8	M4 meme	10 reviews total	Follow up on every unanswered review, once
9	V2 video	2 reviews sent	First audit call booked
10	M5 meme	2 reviews sent	Send the proposal within 24 hours of the call
11	V3 video	2 reviews sent	Answer the ‘too expensive’ objection with the pack
12	V4 video	2 reviews sent	Repost the best performer in a new format
13	—	40 reviews total	Half-month scorecard: DMs, sales, median views
14	—	Decision day	If ₦0 sold: change the door and the flagship, not the effort

The day-14 decision, written as a rule

If nothing has sold by day 14, the content is not the problem yet. Change two things only:

— The door — is the bio clear, is there one link, does the keyword work, is the reply under 15 minutes?

— The flagship — swap the lead offer for the one with the sharpest pain. Usually CLEAR or PLAYBOOK.

Do not add volume. More of the wrong thing is still the wrong thing.

What to build next, in order

01 The link-in-bio page — nine packs, project menu, WhatsApp. One link, one page, no menu.

02 The audit template — one page: three problems, three fixes, one price.

03 The proposal template — one page, six blocks, five-day validity.

04 The saved-reply library — nine keywords, the price question, the timeline question, ‘too expensive’.

05 Batch 02 — built from what batch 01 teaches, not from what we hope.

Content earns attention. The review earns the conversation. The pack earns the trust. The project earns the year.
