How to use this pack

This is a working document, not a book. You do not need to read it in order, and you do not need to finish it before you start. Open the section that matches the problem in front of you today.

> Two sections need your own information before this pack is fully useful: the your details worksheet on the next page, and the checklist at the back. Fill in the worksheet first — it takes about ten minutes, and everything else refers back to it.

What is in this pack

— The five-second test

— The seven blocks every homepage needs

— Headline and subheading formulas

— Eight before/after rewrites

— A one-page homepage brief you fill in

Who it is for

Business owners whose site looks fine but does not convert — people land, scroll, and leave without messaging.

What this pack will not do

It will not do the work for you, and it does not guarantee a result. It gives you the structure, the words and the routine. The rest is you, doing it consistently for a few weeks. That is not a small thing — most people do not.

THE PROBLEM

Why this exists

A visitor decides whether to stay in about five seconds. In that time they are answering four questions: what is this, who is it for, does it solve my problem, what do I do next.

Most homepages answer none of them above the fold. They open with a slogan, a stock photo and a ‘Learn more’ button.

This blueprint fixes the first screen, then the order of everything below it.

PART 01

The five-second test

Open your site on a phone. Hand it to someone who does not know your business. Give them five seconds, then take it back and ask: what do we sell, who for, and what were you meant to do next?

— If they cannot answer all three, the problem is the first screen — not the design, the traffic, or the price.

— Test on a phone, always. Most of your visitors are on one.

PART 02

The seven blocks, in order

— 1 · Headline — what you sell, in the customer's words. One line.

— 2 · Subheading — who it is for and what changes for them. One or two lines.

— 3 · Proof strip — three short facts, clients, years, delivery time, volume.

— 4 · The offer — what they can buy, and the price or the range.

— 5 · How it works — three steps, numbered, no jargon.

— 6 · Objection block — the three reasons people do not buy, answered plainly.

— 7 · One call to action — repeated, identical, everywhere.

YOUR DETAILS

The worksheet — fill this in first

Answer in the plainest words you have. Do not write what you think a business should sound like — write what you would say to a customer standing in front of you.

Business name and what you sell, in one line:

Who your best customer is (age, area, what they do):

The problem they come to you with, in their words:

What you do that a competitor does not:

Your price or price range:

Your delivery time or turnaround:

How a customer reaches you (number, handle, address):

The one thing you want this pack to fix first:

Your current homepage headline (copy it exactly):

What a stranger gets wrong about your business:

DO THIS

The checklist

Work down the list in order. Tick as you go. If you only do the first three, you will still be ahead of most people who bought this.

Step 1	☐	Write the headline first. Do not design anything until it passes the five-second test on paper.
Step 2	☐	Write the subheading. One sentence: who it is for and what changes.
Step 3	☐	List three proof facts you can honestly claim. If you have none, use scope facts (delivery time, what is included).
Step 4	☐	State the offer and the price. If you hide the price, expect fewer enquiries.

Step 5	☐	Write the three steps. Verb first: Send, We build, You go live.
Step 6	☐	Answer the three real objections in plain sentences.
Step 7	☐	Pick one call to action and repeat it in three places: top, middle, bottom.
Step 8	☐	Test on a phone with a stranger. Fix whatever they get wrong.

QUESTIONS

Five things people ask

Should I put the price on my homepage?

If you sell a defined thing at a defined price, yes. Hiding it costs you serious enquiries and attracts people who cannot afford you.

How long should the homepage be?

Long enough to answer the seven blocks, short enough that nobody scrolls past your call to action twice.

Do I need a video?

No. A clear headline beats a beautiful video that explains nothing.

What if I have no testimonials?

Use scope facts instead: delivery time, what is included, how many you have made. Never invent a testimonial.

Can I use this on a one-page site?

Yes — the seven blocks are the page.
