A real estate agent account in Lagos does not need more ideas. It needs three it can actually shoot this week.

Three posts I would test this week for a real estate agent business:

1. an area guide with verified local facts
2. a cost breakdown buyers forget
3. a listing tour that starts with the street

The mistake to avoid: posting only room counts and price.

First action: Record one verified area guide.

Why this works: a page that only shows finished work gives a new customer nothing to save and nothing to ask about. Process is what earns the message.

This is a planning example, not a claim that Easywurld manages this account.

The five pages are attached as a document. Page one is the cover LinkedIn shows on mobile.

Three hours on aI Build: Prepare an after-hours message today. Here is what I got wrong first.

What I am testing in the studio this week: prepare an after-hours message.

→ Input: business hours and service scope
→ The draft: a calm message with the next available action
→ I check: hours, emergency wording and promises
→ Only then: an approved after-hours reply

The part I will not automate is the check. A machine can write a reply. It should not be allowed to promise a price, a date or a result on my behalf.

That boundary is the product. Everything else is convenience.

Labelled concept work — a sample build, not a client result.

Where would you keep a human in the loop in your own business?

Absolute advice is expensive. Take this one: "You need a website before you post."

Verdict: It depends.

A website helps, but a clear profile and contact route can start conversations.
Do not wait for a perfect site to answer customer questions.

How we would test it:
Test the profile-to-WhatsApp journey today and fix broken links

Keep the useful part. Drop the absolute.

That is the whole method: one claim, one verdict, one test small enough to run this week.

The businesses that survive this year are not the loudest.

Nothing is wrong with your content. You are talking to the room, not to the person.

One customer, one problem, one next step. That is the whole brief.

Write to one person and a thousand will feel seen.

I am not saying this to sound clever. I have watched good businesses lose a sale in one chat because the reply was a bare number with no next step.

If you sell by WhatsApp or DM, that reply is your shop counter.

Save it for the next time somebody asks "how much?".

No thread. No funnel. Just the next step made obvious.

Evening thought. Local visibility starts with accurate information.

Will this guarantee ranking? No. It helps you organise accurate local information. Rankings depend on many factors.

This is why The Lagos Local Visibility Starter exists as a ■5,000 DIY pack: most owners do not need an agency this month. They need the scripts, the tracker and the routine, and they need it before Friday.

I am deliberate about the boundary. It is not custom work. It does not guarantee sales. It helps you convert more of the enquiries you already get.

Saying the limit out loud has cost me nothing and saved a lot of awkward conversations.

What is the question customers ask you that you dread answering?
