Eugene Schwartz said it first: market sophistication. Here is what that looks like on a Nigerian small-business page.

The move: Market sophistication.

When every competitor makes the same claim, show a mechanism or specific difference.

What that looks like on a Nigerian page:

Before: 'We help you grow.'
After: 'We make the message, page, content and follow-up agree.'

The part most people skip: do not steal the words. Steal the structure, then write your own example from your own customer.

Source: Breakthrough Advertising. Attributed, not quoted at length.

The five pages are attached as a document. Page one is the cover LinkedIn shows on mobile.

I keep a rule for this studio: nothing goes out that a person has not checked.

Who do we serve? Owner-led small businesses.
What do we do? Make the message, page, content and follow-up agree.
Do we do custom work? Yes, as scoped projects.
Are the ■5,000 packs custom work? No, they are DIY resources.

What I have learned building it: the work is rarely the hard part. The hard part is making the message, the website, the content and the follow-up say the same thing.

When they disagree, the customer does not argue. They just go quiet.

So I am posting the process here, including the parts that are still unfinished.
No wahala — that is the point of building in public.

What is the one thing in your business that keeps disagreeing with itself?

THEN POST AS THE FIRST COMMENT:

Marketing myth: AI can replace marketing strategy.

Verdict: False.

AI can draft and organise, but it does not know your customer, margins, capacity or promise unless you supply them. Strategy still needs human judgement.

How we would test it:
Write the offer, audience and proof first; then ask AI for drafts

Keep the useful part. Drop the absolute.

That is the whole method: one claim, one verdict, one test small enough to run this week.
