A pet groomer account in Lagos does not need more ideas. It needs three it can actually shoot this week.

Three posts I would test this week for a pet groomer business:

1. a coat-type guide
2. a calm handling clip
3. a booking policy for anxious pets

The mistake to avoid: posting only cute cuts.

First action: Explain one coat-type need.

Why this works: a page that only shows finished work gives a new customer nothing to save and nothing to ask about. Process is what earns the message.

This is a planning example, not a claim that Easywurld manages this account.

The five pages are attached as a document. Page one is the cover LinkedIn shows on mobile.

Today I chose the slower option. Let me explain why.

What I am testing in the studio this week: create an onboarding checklist.

→ Input: the service scope
→ The draft: steps for access, content and approvals
→ I check: private credentials in prompts
→ Only then: a secure checklist

The part I will not automate is the check. A machine can write a reply. It should not be allowed to promise a price, a date or a result on my behalf.

That boundary is the product. Everything else is convenience.

Labelled concept work — a sample build, not a client result.

Where would you keep a human in the loop in your own business?

Someone will tell you this week: "Automation can replace customer replies." Here is the verdict.

Verdict: False.

Automation can draft, route and remind. Sensitive answers, prices, promises and complaints need human review.

How we would test it:
Keep a human approval step for every customer-facing message

Keep the useful part. Drop the absolute.

That is the whole method: one claim, one verdict, one test small enough to run this week.

I have read enough "how much?" chats to know one thing.

Sunday night is the cheapest hour of your marketing week.

One hour of decisions saves six hours of improvising.

Plan the week. Then protect it.

I am not saying this to sound clever. I have watched good businesses lose a sale in one chat because the reply was a bare number with no next step.

If you sell by WhatsApp or DM, that reply is your shop counter.

Save it for the next time somebody asks "how much?".

I changed my mind about this last month.

Can you guarantee reviews? No. Ask honestly and make it easy. Do not invent reviews or pressure customers.

This is why The Lagos Local Visibility Starter exists as a ■5,000 DIY pack: most owners do not need an agency this month. They need the scripts, the tracker and the routine, and they need it before Friday.

I am deliberate about the boundary. It is not custom work. It does not guarantee sales. It helps you convert more of the enquiries you already get.

Saying the limit out loud has cost me nothing and saved a lot of awkward conversations.

What is the question customers ask you that you dread answering?
