SERIES-LED CONTENT SYSTEM

Eleven posts, two stories, one voice.

Easywurld · Monday 2 November–Tuesday 1 December 2026

330 content posts. 60 stories. 26 LinkedIn posts. 1,196 platform placements across TikTok, Instagram, Facebook and LinkedIn. One offer each day. Two scene-led memes. Every row starts Draft.

At a glance	Active system
Owner brief	11 posts and 2 stories a day on Facebook, TikTok and Instagram, plus LinkedIn pulls; the daily series plus memes, offers, copy breakdowns, an Easywurld introduction and the Operator close
Volume	11 posts + 2 stories per day × 3 platforms = 39 placements/day, plus 26 LinkedIn posts = 1,196 placements across 30 days
Daily series	Niche plan · Myth Court · Trend Desk · AI Build · owner meme · Offer A · Copy Move · industry meme · Offer B · Meet Easywurld · One Last Thought
Stories	12:30 poll or quiz · 21:00 behind the desk · Instagram, Facebook (+5) and TikTok (+10)
Psychology	One persuasion principle per post, tagged with its guardrail (marketing/PSYCHOLOGY_PLAYBOOK.md)
Presenter	The anonymous Operator: faceless founder, night desk, locked voice, disclosed on every clip
Formats	Carousel 121 · AI talking head 92 · Screen demo 48 · Scene-led static 68 · Text video 1
Offer rotation	One NGN 5,000 DIY pack per day, two angles. Custom projects are separate.
Status	Draft planning pack. No live scheduling. No finished videos.
Trend gate	30 dated teardowns held until a current example, relevance and rights check are logged.

The owner was right about the structure.

The 10-slot series idea gives the audience repeatable reasons to follow and gives the producer a repeatable brief. It is stronger than a random daily feed. The risk is not the number 10; it is publishing 10 versions of the same generic tip, or 10 hard sells. This plan fixes that with one distinct job per slot, one daily offer, original memes, attributed copy lessons and a verification gate for trends.

Volume with a reason.

Easywurld helps small businesses make the message, website, content and follow-up work together. The account should feel like a useful studio thinking out loud: here is the plan I would test, the advice I would question, the trend I would verify, the workflow I would automate, the joke every owner knows, the offer that fits, the copy lesson worth stealing and the people behind the work.

Why the series work

Series	Weekly job	What must stay true
If I ran this account	Niche-specific social plans	Say “If I ran”; never imply Easywurld manages the account
Marketing Myth Court	Verdict + small test	No absolute replaced by another absolute
Trend Desk	Dated teardown + adaptation	Verify a current example; no invented live trend
AI Automation Build	One bounded workflow	Input → AI draft → human check → output
Meme: owner life	Recognition humour	Joke about the work, not the customer
Offer Spotlight A	Problem + actual contents	Confirm price, fulfilment and DIY boundary
Steal This Copy Move	Attributed principle + new example	Steal the structure, not the words
Meme: marketing/AI/clients	Industry humour	Original; no stolen template or fake UI
Offer Spotlight B	One objection + answer	Same pack, same keyword, no pressure
Meet Easywurld	New intro angle/format	No fake team, office, clients or results
One Last Thought	The Operator closes the day	No face, no invented biography, AI label on

One idea, three placements

Each day has 11 content ideas, not 33 separate productions. Each core post has three captions and independent status/QA fields. TikTok is the native vertical destination; Instagram gets a Reel, carousel or static as appropriate; Facebook gets a slightly more conversational native version. The hook and CTA stay consistent, while the file, caption, crop, audio rights and disclosure are checked per platform. The two stories use the same asset on all three platforms within the hour. LinkedIn is rewritten from the finished copy — never pasted.

Formats

Format	Core posts	Production note
Carousel	121	Exact five-slide copy. One idea per slide. No fake metrics or stock people.
AI talking head	92	Approved likeness/voice or licensed avatar; AI label; no long logo intro.

Format	Core posts	Production note
Screen demo	48	Real repo demo or workflow storyboard; concept/sample label visible.
Relatable static	68	Scene-led meme: photograph first, small two-line caption. The caption carries the lesson.
Text video	1	Short text-led video; same facts and CTA.

Volume warning

A full week is 77 content posts, 14 stories, 6 LinkedIn posts and 273 placements. Batch by series, not by day. Hold a slot when QA fails rather than publishing unreviewed AI or stacking a catch-up burst. The plan is a starting system, not a guarantee of reach, sales or safe platform limits.

Platform adaptation

Platform	Timing	Adaptation
TikTok	Slot time	Native vertical video, photo carousel or text video. Spoken hook, captions, commercial audio check, AI setting.
Instagram	+10 min	Reel, carousel or static. Structured caption, crop/cover check, AI setting.
Facebook	+20 min	Native text + video/image, photo album or Reel. Conversational caption; do not paste a TikTok tag block.
LinkedIn	09:00, six a week	Rewritten, not pasted. Short paragraphs, two tags maximum, link in the first comment.

The psychology layer

Every post carries one persuasion principle and its guardrail: cognitive ease, loss aversion, curiosity gap, specificity, honest social proof, reciprocity, authority through restraint, anchoring, peak-end, mere exposure, identity or objection relief. If a principle only works when we exaggerate, the principle is dropped. Posts that cannot produce a checkable detail do not get published.

Story placement

Keyword	Pack	Days
PLAYBOOK	The Chat-to-Customer Playbook	1, 10, 19, 28
CLEAR	The Clear Homepage Blueprint	2, 11, 20, 29
ENGINE	The 30-Day Content Engine	3, 12, 21, 30
PAGE	The One-Offer Landing Page Kit	4, 13, 22
LOCAL	The Lagos Local Visibility Starter	5, 14, 23
MESSAGE	The Clear Message Workbook	6, 15, 24
PROMPTS	The Everyday AI Prompt Desk	7, 16, 25
TEMPLATES	The Proposal & Report Template Pack	8, 17, 26
LAUNCH	The Website Launch & Care Handbook	9, 18, 27

Story slots

Slot	Time	Type	Frames	Job
A	12:30	Poll / quiz	3	One tap; answer on frame 3; no link
B	21:00	Behind the desk	3	The Operator desk → tomorrow's hook → link sticker

Trust rules

Label all concept/sample work. No invented testimonials, rankings, client results or campaign metrics. Hypothetical businesses and chats are examples. DIY packs are not custom projects. Trend posts need a dated source check. Copywriting posts attribute the principle and use original examples. AI presenters and voices are disclosed. Private CVs, identity sources, customer messages and payment details stay out of public Git.

What we measure

Question	Evidence	Not enough on its own
Did people recognise the problem?	Saves, shares, relevant comments	Raw views
Did the explanation hold attention?	Watch time, completion	One viral spike
Did the account create intent?	Profile visits, keyword enquiries, briefs	Follower count
Did the offer fit?	Confirmed sales, qualified project briefs	Clicks without fulfilment
Which series earns a return?	Seven-day comparison by series	One post’s result

Thirty days, ten slots each.

Each row lists the core topics for the day. Every core post has three platform placements. Times are a test, not a proven best time. Offer keywords rotate through the nine DIY packs.

If I ran a fashion designer account in Lagos

Hook: “If I ran a fashion designer account in Lagos, this is what I would post this week.”

Slide 1: If I ran a fashion designer account in Lagos, this is what I would post this week.
Slide 2: Three posts I would test:
1. a fitting-room clip showing one garment on three body types
2. a fabric-care answer customers can save
3. a made-to-order timeline with honest milestones
Slide 3: One mistake to avoid: posting only finished dresses.
Slide 4: First action: Show the fitting decision, not just the final dress.
Slide 5: This is a planning example, not a claim that Easywurld manages this account. Which idea would you test first?

CTA: Comment the idea you would test first.

Visual/edit: Five 1080×1350 cream slides. Deep-green serif headline, one terracotta accent. Owned or labelled example visuals only. Set exact slide copy. One idea per slide. On TikTok export as a photo carousel or a simple text video.

No synthetic presenter planned · Fallback: Record the same plan as a 30-second talking head or publish it as a text post.

Myth Court: Posting every day guarantees growth.

Hook: “Marketing myth: Posting every day guarantees growth.”

Marketing myth: Posting every day guarantees growth Verdict: It depends. Frequency can create more chances to learn, but it does not fix an unclear offer or weak content. Ten useful series posts are different from ten random posts. Test it: Compare one week of consistent series posts with the previous week using saves, profile visits and relevant enquiries. That is Myth Court: keep the useful part, drop the absolute.

Trend Desk: Brand Vibe

Hook: “Trend Desk: Brand Vibe — use the structure, not the hype.”

Trend Desk: Brand Vibe. Drizzle Digital Vol. 40 reported it on 26 October 2026: a product front and center with four still shots that express the brand vibe. The business adaptation: Use one real product or service outcome with four owned images that show the customer's world. Do not invent a lifestyle. Before posting, verify a current example and the audio rights. This is a dated teardown, not a live trend claim. Save the filter, not the hype.

CTA: Save the trend filter before your next post.

Trend gate: HOLD: within 7 days before publishing, record a current example URL, date checked, platform, rights check and reviewer. If no current example is verified, publish only as a dated teardown with the live-trend wording removed. Dated source: https://drizzledigital.com/social-media-trends-oct-2026/ (2026-10-26).

Visual/edit: Screen recording of the dated source plus an original Easywurld adaptation storyboard. Keep “Dated teardown · verify before use” visible. No unlicensed audio or private accounts. Readable crop. Approved voice only. Never claim the format is trending now unless the verification log is complete.

Steal this copy move from David Ogilvy: Headlines should do a job.

The principle: A headline can select the audience and promise a useful reason to keep reading.

An original example, not theirs:

Before: 'Welcome to our studio.' After: 'Websites for Lagos businesses that need clearer enquiries.'

Do not steal the words. Steal the structure. Attribute the principle and write your own example.

A myth worth testing: Long copy always sells better

It depends.

Copy should be long enough to answer the buyer's questions and short enough to keep attention. Awareness and price change the need.

How I would test it: Match copy length to the buyer's stage and test one variable.

Batch by series. Verify trends. Schedule only after QA.

Weekly batch rhythm

Block	Output	Rule
Trend verification	7 gates	Log current example, relevance, rights and reviewer
Scripts/offers	70 scripts	Confirm facts, price, sample labels and one CTA
Talking heads	21+ videos	Approved likeness/voice or static fallback
Screen demos	7–14 videos	Real demo or storyboard; concept/sample label
Graphics	40–50 assets	Carousels, 14 memes, offer/copy/intro statics
Captions	210 placements	Three platform captions; human check each
Scheduling	210 placements	Confirm queue; paste actual URL/status

Trend Desk gate

Trend posts are held until the production log contains a current example URL, platform, date checked, rights check, relevance note and reviewer. If no current example is verified, publish only as a dated teardown. Do not claim “trending now” from an old report. Do not use a personal-account sound for a brand unless the rights are cleared.

The Operator (AI presenter)

Anonymous Operator persona: faceless founder, night-desk set, calm low voice. No real likeness is used; disclose every clip as 'AI presenter - Easywurld'. Never describe it as the owner's face and never use the fictional demo founder. See marketing/AVATAR_OPERATOR.md.

The persona is documented in marketing/AVATAR_OPERATOR.md with three faceless scene plates and two locked-tone voice samples in marketing/assets/avatar/. No face is shown, so no real likeness or photo release is needed. Keep the AI label visible and enable the platform setting. Never describe the Operator as the owner’s real face, never use the fictional demo founder, and keep private CVs, identity documents and customer records out of this public repository.

Scheduling reality

TikTok’s official scheduler announcement describes a 15-minute to 10-day window and says scheduled posts cannot be edited; delete and re-upload to change one. Check the current limits in your account. Meta Business Suite supports Facebook and Instagram planning, but features and limits vary. The CSV is a planning sheet, not an auto-publishing import.

Memes and stories

Memes are scene-led: a real photograph of the moment, a small two-line caption in the lower third, eight rotating scene plates, no wall of text. Stories are three frames at 1080×1920 with captions burned in; the poll story never carries a link, the desk story never carries an unverified trend claim, and both expire in 24 hours so they are checked before posting.

QA per placement

Facts, price, offer and sample labels checked · trend verification or live-trend wording removed · Operator disclosure or fallback · captions, crop and disclosure checked · one CTA/destination tested on a phone · human approval recorded. Offer placements add: price, payment and fulfilment confirmed.

Measurement

Record only available metrics: 24-hour and 7-day views/plays, average watch time, completion, saves, shares, profile visits, relevant comments, WhatsApp keyword enquiries, qualified briefs and confirmed sales. Compare by series after seven days. Change one variable at a time. Do not publish an invented success story.
